Exceptional water pump service, backed by new company

Local water pump companies Bartley Pump and Groundwater Pump & Well were recently acquired by PumpMan — a leading nationwide provider of water pump system service, repair and expertise. The merging of these providers brings a whole new level of pump system expertise to Sonoma County. The companies have merged to form PumpMan NorCal, located in Santa Rosa, which strives to provide the best customer service to those using or looking to use water pump systems.

PumpMan NorCal provides a range of residential, agricultural, municipal and commercial water pump services. Their services tackle backflow testing, booster pump systems, irrigation filters, solar pumps, well and water testing, as well as a range of other services.

When it comes to residential clients, PumpMan has worked on pumps in single family homes all the way up to apartment buildings. In the agriculture market, PumpMan NorCal has helped wineries and vineyards with a range of water systems and pumps, providing behind the scenes expertise and helping turn water into wine. The company also works with both commercial businesses, as well as cities and towns, to design and maintain efficient pump systems.

“While we have a specialty in wells and the agricultural and municipal markets, the strength of PumpMan NorCal really rests with our competent technicians and satisfied customers,” said Jason Smith, general manager of PumpMan NorCal. “We strive to make every PumpMan NorCal customer experience a positive one, leading to stable and repeat customer relationships.”

PumpMan’s trained technicians are available around the clock to address any emergency pump needs, and have the ability to repair existing pumps or to design a new system. With the combining of these two companies, customers can expect to continue receiving the same level of exceptional service — but with the added benefit of being backed by nationwide support and increased expertise.

“With the experience and expertise that comes from merging Bartley Pump and Groundwater Pump & Well, PumpMan NorCal assembled a strong organization with the necessary tools needed to be best and most capable provider of comprehensive pump services in the Northern California region,” Smith said. “PumpMan has invested time and resources with a goal of outfitting each of its service centers, including PumpMan NorCal, with the necessary tools to meet and exceed customer expectations.”

The acquisition of Bartley Pump and Groundwater Pump & Well have enabled PumpMan NorCal to add new capabilities and resources to their team. As part of their extended range of abilities, the company has invested in a new camera van, which allows them to inspect wells quicker through high-definition video.

For homeowners, business owners and wineries, PumpMan NorCal over 50 years in the water pump industry, and it ready to tackle your water pump needs.
